

BMO is changing its name to Columbia Threadneedle Investments

Bringing BMO funds under the Columbia Threadneedle
Investments brand

This document is important but does not require you to take any action.

In November 2021, BMO GAM (EMEA) became part of Columbia Threadneedle Investments, a leading asset manager with a global presence.

We believe that combining our two businesses creates real benefits for our clients.

The shared expertise of our 2,500-strong team brings new insights and adds depth to our investment research, while broadening the range of funds and solutions we can offer. We remain committed to our long-held responsible investment principles and to helping you meet your investment objectives.

You don't have to do anything

The BMO fund names will change this July as they come under the Columbia Threadneedle Investments brand but there are no plans to change the way the funds are managed at this point. We've included a list of the name changes below for your information.

- * The new fund name includes "Select" to differentiate it from a similarly named fund under the Columbia Threadneedle brand. "Select" refers to high quality carefully chosen stocks and reflects how the fund has always been run. There will be no change to the way the fund is managed.
-  The new fund name replaces "Companies" with "Cap" to differentiate it from a similarly named fund under the Columbia Threadneedle brand. "Cap" is an abbreviation of "market capitalisation". There will be no change to the way the fund is managed.
-  The new fund name adds "Institutional" to differentiate it from a similarly named fund under the Columbia Threadneedle brand. There will be no change to the types of bonds held by the fund and no change to the way the fund is managed.
